Peter Webb offers quality private lessons to those who want to extend their knowledge of music. Whether you want to learn a new instrument or you want to learn how to better use your instrument, he can help. No prior experience is required, just a heart that's willing to learn!

This year at the co-op, Peter Webb will be teaching piano, guitar, bass and voice for many skill levels. He teaches chord charts, lead sheets, improvisation, Nashville numbers, and many other things helpful in playing worship music.

Note that these are not classical lessons. The bulk of the teaching is focused on the study of chords, rhythms and improvisation. The repertoire is focused around the top 100 songs sung in churches today.

Peter has been working with over a thousand students across the greater Kalamazoo area since the Summer of 2009, enabling and encouraging them to use their God-given gifts. He has a strong background in contemporary worship. As a worship leader, he teaches students from dozens of different churches each year in lessons, classes and camps. Parents have seen success with students quickly starting to serve others with their talents with the skills they acquire from lessons with Peter.

Course Materials & Fees: Students need a three ring binder. Other supplies such as a metronome, tuner, or capo may be required.

Each lesson is $35, paid weekly, or in a lump sum at the beginning of the semester.

At REACH, lesson tuition is always charged, unless the instructor is absent.

Students paying with LAMP funds must agree to the WorshipArts LAMP policy.

Lessons are also taught at 2020 Fulford St. on Mon, Tues, Thurs and Fri, should those days work better.
