What are you
excited to learn about in Nature and Me this year?

Ages 4-6
4th Period 1:15-2:35

I have developed a deep love for nature study over the past five years, and I am excited to bring that passion into the classroom. In recent years, we have focused on exploring the natural world in our own backyard. This year, we will build on that foundation by expanding our learning to include nature from around the world. Together, we will explore mammals, birds, ecosystems, plants, and trees—both locally and globally—while naturally incorporating elements of geography into our studies. Because children are naturally creative, we will also enjoy monthly nature-inspired art projects as a meaningful and engaging part of our class experience.

Topics and Activities:

- Weekly nature hikes
- Nature Art
- Insect Study
- Ecosystems around the world
- Learning more about wildflowers and gardening
- Trees, leaves and bark
- Bird study
- Learning more about plants in our own backyard and around the world

Hi, my name is Jaime Rogers. I'm a homeschool mom to four amazing girls whom I've had the privilege of homeschooling for the past 10 years. I'm married to my best friend of 25 years. When I'm not doing laundry or homeschooling, I love hanging out with family, listening to worship music, reading books, drinking coffee and gardening.

My husband and I made a choice 9 years ago to move from a residential neighborhood to the country. Since then I have found that being surrounded by God's amazing creation has led our homeschooling to be more adventurous and exploratory. I hope to share that same wonder and beauty God has placed all around us to encourage and enhance your student's academic exploration in my classroom.
