

LITTLE MELODIES

Instructor: Sari Wright

Second half of 2nd Period (40 mins): 1:15-2:35

Ages: 4-7 years

Email: sarilwright@gmail.com

Little Melodies is an introduction to music for early elementary students. The class will be based around singing, dancing, and rhythm. Music will be explored through play and discovery. We will use stories, songs and activities to learn the many components of music. Students will learn about dynamics, notation, rhythm, solfege, and so much more. We will take a close look at many different instruments, giving a good base for what each instrument is like, how it's played, and what it sounds like. My goal for my students is that, by the end of the year, they have a broader idea of how music is created, they have grown in their musical skills, and most importantly that they enjoy music even more than they did before.

ABOUT THE TUTOR

I am a homeschool mom to three kids of my own, ages 8, 6, and 4 years old. I have always had a love for teaching, and am passionate about learning through play. I have also loved incorporating methods from Charlotte Mason into our learning. I went to school at University of Northwestern St. Paul and began a degree in Communication Arts and Literature Education before becoming a mom and choosing to stay home with my kids. I studied music theory and sight singing in college, played the violin in orchestras and sang in choirs throughout my entire childhood, and have recently joined an orchestra again. I am passionate about prioritizing music in children's education, and love to do so through play and exploration in the early years.
