

DAN BULLEY

DBSS

SOCCER SCHOOL

Reliable Educators And Community-minded Homeschoolers

Students will enjoy a fun and positive learning environment as they gain soccer fundamentals and skills. They will be exposed to drills and sessions that are derived from the Meulensteen Method. Players will gain confidence with 1v1 situations and ball handling.

An important component of your child's experience with DBSS is the opportunity to further sportsmanship and character development.

About the Tutors:

Dan Bulley is from Devon England. He received a degree in Sociology from SUNY Buffalo and completed his Masters degree in Coaching Sports Performance at WMU. He received several soccer scholarships and played at the collegiate level. In 2009, his team represented Great Britain at the 2009 World University Games in Serbia. After college he played on several professional teams.

While he continued to play, Dan's attention turned toward coaching. In 2015, he started Dan Bulley Soccer School (DBSS) which holds numerous classes and camps as well as sponsoring teams throughout southern Michigan.

Dan teaches to inspire and motivate young minds. He often states that he was fortunate to have great teachers and coaches while growing up and believes it's his duty to give back and help kids reach their potential.

Adam Wright is the middle child of three boys, born and raised in Southend-On-Sea Essex, England. He has always loved soccer. Adam played for Olivet College and professionally for Detroit City FC. He began coaching in 2014 and is currently the Head Coach at Jackson College.

His passion is educating youth in sports drawing from his own vast experiences. When not playing soccer, Adam enjoys playing golf.
