Meet the Tutor:

Carl Ross, Jr., has a MFA in Creative Writing from Western Michigan University. His family attends Christ Tabernacle Church in Cassopolis, Michigan. Mr. Ross has three children, two girls and one boy, ages 16, 11, and 7. They all attend Kalamazoo Christian where Mr. Ross has served as school board secretary and as a substitute teacher and events volunteer. He has also served on various educational and administrative committees for Kalamazoo Christian, Kalamazoo Valley Community College, and Western Michigan University.

Mr. Ross also loves helping students share their thoughts in writing, but he can also relate to students' fears in doing this because he was not a good writer, simply because he was not a good reader. To help with this, Mr. Ross loves quoting Saul Bellow: "A writer is a reader moved to emulation." Put another way for Mr. Ross, Proverbs 1:5 says, "Let the wise hear and increase in learning, and the one who understands obtain guidance." Mr. Ross understands that successful young writers read more than they write because reading is the language where they will find inspiration to emulate. Reading is listening to wise words, crucial for their guidance in critical thinking and writing skills--there's just no other way to gain these skills. Mr. Ross has taught this sound principle to students for over 17 years, and he hopes to do the same for your students.
